Description

The 2016 CECR competition is seeking to fund new centres that can build on Canada's Research and Development (R&D) landscape by enabling the commercialization of research by matching clusters of academic research expertise with the needs of business, health practitioners and other end users. The emphasis of the CECR program is on commercialization, including new technologies, and goods and services. Centres seeking funding must be able to demonstrate a robust business plan and a feasible plan for sustainability.

Centres applying to the 2016 CECR competition must demonstrate how the proposed centre will address one or more of the following priority areas identified by the Government of Canada:

- Environmental science and technologies;
- Natural resources and energy;
- Health and related life sciences and technologies;
- Information and communications technologies; and
- Management, business or finance.

Eligibility

Organizations eligible to receive funds are not-for-profit corporations created by universities, colleges, not-for-profit research organizations, firms, and other interested non-government parties.

Funding Availability

The number of centres to be funded will be dependent upon the quality of the applications received and the budget available for the competition.

Maximum Project Value

The Centers will be reviewed based on the full lifecycle and total funding needed to achieve sustainability. A maximum of $15 million will be provided over a 5-year timeframe. Centres that submit applications in excess of 5 years will be subject to an international panel review in their fifth year of operation prior to being awarded the remaining funding.

Indirect Costs

No indirect costs are required on the amount requested from NCE; however, indirect costs may apply on amounts requested from partners.

Project Duration

The CECR Program does not specify an expected time frame for which centres can apply. The expert panel will assess the viability and the appropriateness of the time and funding requested to achieve sustainability. Each centre requesting funding will be assessed on the viability of the centre's plan to become self-sufficient by the end of CECR funding.
