

Alton Ochsner Award Relating Smoking and Disease 2023

Sponsor

Ochsner Clinic Foundation

Description

This prestigious award recognizes exemplary scientific research achievements that provide major insights into the biological mechanisms relating tobacco smoking and human disease. It has been given annually since 1986 by Ochsner Health.

The award is named in honor of Dr. Alton Ochsner, co-founder of the Ochsner Clinic (now known as Ochsner Health), based in New Orleans, Louisiana. In 1939, Dr. Ochsner published the first evidence indicating that tobacco smoking was the major cause of lung cancer. These seminal research findings led to a succession of scientific studies in the United States and worldwide resulting in the identification of the underlying causes associated with diseases related to smoking.

Program details and timeline are not yet confirmed. This information will be updated when the program launches.

Eligibility

An annual award of $15,000 will be presented to one to three investigators without regard to age, race, gender or nationality for outstanding and exemplary original scientific investigations that relate tobacco consumption with disease. This scientific work may be clinical, fundamental, epidemiological or preventive in scope. The prime criterion for award selection is scientific content and impact of this major health threat. All nominations, whatever the category of scientific inquiry, must be supported by letters and copies of peer-reviewed scientific publications.

Prize

Recipients receive a $15,000 honorarium, an award medallion and a plaque describing their key research findings.
