

How to Demonstrate the Value of Your Research: Advantage Workshop

Date

Thursday February 11, 2021 2:00pm to 3:00pm

Description

Presented by: Amy Skeoch

This interactive online workshop introduces U of G research teams to tools that will allow them to clearly communicate the potential impact of their work and enable them to write value-focused grant applications. Teams will also discover how clear communication and persuasive value propositions can mobilize teams and external partners more successfully.

In this workshop, research teams will:

- Craft project descriptions to effectively communicate pertinent information using a step-by-step process; and
- Articulate, both verbally and in writing, why solving specific research problems matters and should be supported.

Please register for this free workshop via the Eventbrite page. The webinar link will be emailed to registrants prior to the event.
