Description

HIRP OPEN is a 1-2 year award to support contract-based innovation research of world-class full-time faculty members at top universities around the world. Huawei issues an annual “HIRP OPEN Call for Proposals” that openly lists key topics of interest and solicits proposals for research subjects.

HIRP OPEN 2018 will include 180 research subjects involving 20 technical fields. The main fields are as follows:

Topic Areas:

- Wireless Communication Technology
- Future Networks
- Optical Technology
- Storage Technology
- Computing Technology
- Big Data & Artificial Intelligence
- Media Technology
- Engineering Technology
- Data Management and Process
- Advanced Semiconductor Technology
- Compiler & Programming Language
- BlockChain
- Software Engineering

- Operation System

Eligibility

Each applicant must be a full-time faculty member (lecturer, assistant professor, associate professor or full professor) at a leading university or research institution that awards research degrees to PhD students around the world. Huawei will not accept applications from professors on behalf of students, post-docs, or others not eligible to apply. If an applicant has more than one ongoing project with Huawei, please apply for HIRP OPEN until at least one project is completed. Please note that joint research proposals from multiple universities will not be accepted in the HIRP Open program.

Maximum Project Value

Selected proposals will receive financial support with amounts ranging from $30,000 to $70,000 USD. In some cases, larger awards may be possible for especially outstanding proposals.

Indirect Costs

40%

Project Duration

One to two year projects
