Description

Food from Thought at the University of Guelph is now accepting applications for a new funding opportunity for graduate students, Leadership Skills for Communicating Change in the Agri-food Sector. Food from Thought is seeking emerging scholars who are passionately committed to fostering sustainable agriculture, promoting nutritious and equitable diets, and developing resilient supply chains for a successful Canadian agri-food system.

These scholarships (up to twelve) are valued at $10,000 to support University of Guelph graduate students whose research focuses on agriculture and food.

Successful applicants will participate in UNIV\*6050 [3], a 2-semester graduate course where students collaborate in multi-disciplinary teams with an external partner on a project related to a key agri-food challenge.

Please visit the OGPS website for competition details. [4]

Application deadline for Fall 2023: July 19, 2023

Eligibility

Students entering or registered in any full-time graduate program who will be participating in research focused on agriculture and food and who are (or will be) registered in UNIV*6050 Innovation and Entrepreneurship in Agri-Food Systems for the first time in the upcoming fall semester are eligible to apply.
