

Workshop: Sharing Science with Policy-Makers

Description

The Institute on Governance will be offering a hands-on and practical workshop on science communication for policy, exclusively for faculty, staff and students at the University of Guelph.

Jeff Kinder and Rhonda Moore, two experienced science communicators with extensive expertise in public policy, will:

- discuss the two cultures of science and policy and how science communication can bridge these cultures
- identify different ways that academics can inform public policy at the federal level
- review best practices for delivering scientific information in plain language to a policy audience at the federal level using a principle-based approach

Register online and join us on May 18, 2022 from 1-3pm EST to learn more. This workshop will not be recorded.

Click here to learn more about this alert Alert Classifications

Category:
Workshops and Events

Disciplines:

Health and Life Sciences

Humanities

Information and Communications Technology

Physical Sciences and Engineering

Social Sciences

Source

URL: <https://www-research.uoguelph.ca/research/alerts/content/workshop-sharing-science-policy-makers>