Description

Funded by the Ministry of Advanced Education and Skills Development this centre of excellence will enhance the body of research and good evidence to build capacity in Ontario's employment and training system to help more Ontarians get and keep jobs.

The objective of the Ontario Centre for Workforce Innovation (OCWI) Research and Innovation Fund is to support research, evaluation and innovation projects to improve opportunities for people to obtain, retain, or advance in terms of employment, become more productive participants in the labour force and improve well-being.

This is the first in a series of call for proposals to be issued by the OCWI over the next year. This particular phase focuses on research on a particular issue or evaluation of a program/service delivery approach in Ontario which has the potential for impact.
