QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOLARS-WEST AFRICA 2ND COHORT AT UNIVERSITY OF GHANA (UG)

The Queen Elizabeth Scholars (QES) program has funded NetLinks, a McGill University-University of Ghana-Université Joseph KI-ZERBO program to strengthen the capacity of researchers who work with farmers, entrepreneurs, community leaders, and local institutions to develop solutions to enhance equity and sustainable inclusive growth in rural communities. Our team works with private and public institutions to (i) improve inter-institutional coordination of services, (ii) enhance women's access to financial, technical, and health services, (iii) increase women's leadership opportunities and decision-making in businesses and communities, (iv) augment women's voices in communities and with institutions, and (v) decrease gender inequities.

NetLinks will support a second cohort of exceptional scholars from diverse disciplines who are at the doctoral, post-doctoral, and early career stages. The program integrates research and professional training with internships hosted at non-academic institutions working in rural communities. Cross-cutting research issues will include but are not be limited to (i) the quality of production of small-scale women farmers working on high-value animal products and other agricultural commodities, (ii) farmers' association(s) and cooperatives to support women farmers and facilitate access to agriculture and financial services and development of small businesses, (iii) adolescent girls and women's knowledge and skills needed to become successful agriculture-related entrepreneurs; and (iv) institutional collaborations to provide services and support for adolescent girls and women's nutrition, development, and income generation.

The QES NetLinks program is a 5-week professional development program at the University of Ghana's Nutrition Research and Training Centre (NRTC) in Asesewa, Ghana<sup>1</sup>. The program will be carried out in English; some language assistance will be available for Francophones, with the expectation that Anglophone Scholars expand their Francophone capabilities, and vice-versa.

The program includes:

(i) Training on leadership, ethics, communications/social media, gender equity, research methods, data management, and grant management;

(ii) A collaborative research project with a Research Placement Partner (RPP), located in Canada or an eligible<sup>2</sup> African country, for at least 11 days of the 35 days of the program<sup>3</sup>. This will be in-person and/or virtual. The RPP may be a for-profit business, a non-governmental organization, or an independent research institution and will be chosen a priori in consultation with the scholar;

(iii) Engagement activities with the local community; and

(iv) Networking with other QEScholars and project resource persons.
