Becoming Blended

Conferences!

So I'm always looking for new and exciting conferences to attend (and potentially present at).

This arrived in my inbox today and I thought it was such a great list, I had to share.

Society for Teaching and Learning in Higher Education (STLHE) - Presentation

My colleague, Laura Schnablegger, and I presented on our SoTL project at STLHE 2016.

About our study:

Numerous studies exist on how and to what extent course instructors in higher education are embedding or directly teaching writing, learning and research skills in their courses (Cilliers, 2011; Crosthwaite et al.,

ECIL 2016

Earlier in October, I attended ECIL 2016 (European Conference on Information Literacy). I really enjoyed the opportunity to share my own research with an international audience.

Me + My Poster

You can download a PDF of my poster "The Intersection between Professor Expectations and Student Interpretations of Academic Skills: A Multi-Disciplinary Approach" here.

I also found the content to be exciting and am sharing some of my visual notes from the conference.

Affordable Course Content + Open Educational Resources

Today I attended a webinar on Affordable Course Content and Open Educational Resources reviewing the survey findings by ARL. The webinar provided a snapshot of initiatives and strategies in support of affordable course content by ARL member libraries and their institutions, discussed examples of noteworthy services and resources and discussed the future role of libraries supporting affordable course content in general and within the Association in particular.
